DATA VISUALIZATION WORKSHOPS
Introduction to OpenRefine
Tuesday, September 17, 2019, 11-12pm
Instructor: Eimmy Solis
VKC Multimedia Room
RSVP

Have you ever spent hours cleaning a large dataset with excel? This workshop will provide an introduction to OpenRefine, a powerful open source tool for exploring, cleaning and manipulating “messy” data. This workshop will have several hands-on activities and a laptop is required to attend.

Learning Objective: Participants will learn how to explore and identify patterns in a dataset; normalize data using facets and clusters; manipulate and generate new textual and numeric data; and transform and reshape datasets.
Don’t miss this hands-on workshop led by researchers at the USC Institute for Creative Technologies and the USC Sidney Harman Academy for Polymathic Study on using drone photographs to create 3D interactive models. This special event is being held in conjunction with an October 15 talk by artist Reuben Wu, who uses light-carrying drones to create sublime and otherworldly photographic landscapes.

Admission is free and open to USC students only. Reservations required. Capacity is limited. RSVP beginning Wednesday, August 14, at 9 a.m.

USC LIBRARIES WEBSITE IMPROVEMENTS

The USC Libraries has taken the wraps off a revamped web site that offers significant improvements for our user community. Thanks to feedback from our users, we have simplified both the ability to search for resources and the way in which the results are displayed. In addition, all of the USC Libraries sites will now be integrated into one home page.
