

Greetings from your librarian!

Dear Comparative Literature Faculty:

My name is Elizabeth Galoozis; I'm the new subject librarian for comparative literature. I'm planning to send a newsletter every two months or so, to let you know what's new in the libraries, and to connect with you about library services and resources. I hope you find this first edition - highlighting the services and support I can offer - informative. I look forward to meeting and working with you soon.

-Elizabeth Galoozis

Librarian for Comparative Literature

(213) 821-0097

galoozis@usc.edu

Library Instruction and Workshops

USC Libraries offers course-integrated research instruction throughout the year. I can develop tailored workshops for specific undergraduate or graduate classes focusing on research skills, resources, or citation management. I'm also available to collaborate on:

- research assignment and syllabus design
- online tutorials and research guides

Help me rehabilitate the Comparative Literature library research guide!

Do you have a favorite resource - database, listserv, website - that you think COLT students should know about? The libraries' research guide on comparative literature is in need of updating, and I'd love to hear what you think are the most important information sources to highlight.

(Image by Flickr user JD Hancock)

Research Consultations

If you or your students would like to consult about research strategies, you can find information about how to schedule an appointment, call, or email me here.

New Materials and Subscriptions

Please let me know by emailing me if there are any books, databases, films, journals, or other materials you'd like to request for the Libraries' collections. I'd also love your feedback on whether you prefer monographs in print or electronic form.