Los Angeles Area Emmy Winners
"Lost L.A.," a co-production of the University of Southern California Libraries and KCET, has won a 2019 Los Angeles Area Emmy in the Culture/History Category from the Television Academy. "Lost L.A." is a one-of-a-kind collaboration between a public media organization and a major research institution that brings to bear the collections and expertise of USC Libraries to center primary sources in multimedia storytelling.

The episode, “Yosemite,” tells the less-visible stories of Yosemite National Park, including those of the Ahwahneechee People and the Stoneman Meadow Riot of 1970. The complete episode is available online at: https://www.kcet.org/shows/lost-la/episodes/yosemite.

Congratulations to everyone on the "Lost L.A." team and be sure to check "Yosemite" out!

USC LIBRARIES WEBSITE IMPROVEMENTS

In August, prior to the start of the fall semester, the USC Libraries will be taking the wraps off a revamped web site that offers significant improvements for our user community. Thanks to feedback from our users, we have simplified both the ability to search for resources and the way in which the results are displayed. In addition, all of the USC Libraries sites will now be integrated into one home page.
